

11/07/23 • BIG PHARMA › NEWS

Gates-Funded Plan to Vaccinate 86 Million Girls Against HPV Will 'Unleash Mass Casualty Event,' Critic Says

Gavi, the Vaccine Alliance is investing more than $600 million to reach its goal of vaccinating 86 million girls in low- and middle-income countries by 2025. The alliance is funded in large part by the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation.

By Brenda Baletti, Ph.D.

Miss a day, miss a lot. Subscribe to The Defender's Top News of the Day. It's free.

An international campaign — funded in large part by the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation — to inject tens of millions of young girls with the human papillomavirus (HPV) vaccine is drawing fire from critics who allege the vaccine will cause far more harm than good.

Claiming the initiative will avert “over 1.4 million future deaths,” Gavi, the Vaccine Alliance announced it is investing more than $600 million to reach its goal of vaccinating 86 million girls in low- and middle-income countries by 2025.

The Gates Foundation co-founded Gavi and is one of its four permanent board members. UNICEF, the World Bank and the World Health Organization (WHO) — whose second-largest donor is Gates — hold the other permanent seats.

The Clinton Health Access Initiative also sits on the board.

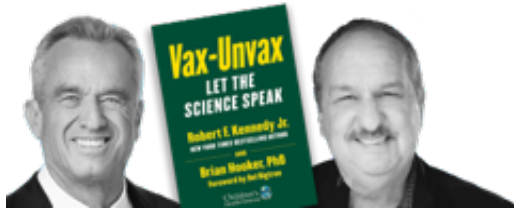

James Lyons-Weiler, Ph.D., a critic of the global HPV vaccine campaign, suggested mass vaccination will cause a devastating number of serious side effects among young girls, even though there are still no studies showing the HPV vaccine prevents cancer, despite claims to the contrary by vaccine makers and public health officials.

Lyons-Weiler, head of the Institute for Pure and Applied Knowledge, told The Defender:

“In 2009, we were told the Severe Adverse Event [SAE] rate of HPV vaccines was 6.5%. But a study we published in Science, Public Health Policy & The Law showed that the adverse events profile of the HPV vaccine is far worse than has been reported.

“Unleashing this vaccine on millions of girls and young women will lead to a mass casualty event these countries do not now have, and do not need. SAE’s will occur at the rate of 65,000 per million women vaccinated, and the claimed net benefits of the vaccine are just not there.”

RFK Jr. and Brian Hooker's New Book: "Vax-Unvax"

'No eligible girl ... left behind'

Nigeria earlier this month became the latest country in Africa to promote HPV vaccines by introducing the vaccine into its routine immunization program and announcing an initial drive to vaccinate 7.7 million girls — the largest number yet in a single round of HPV vaccination in Africa.

Gavi said Nigeria's initiative would kick off with a five-day mass vaccination drive in schools and communities in 16 of Nigeria's 36 states and the Federal Capital Territory. Phase 2 of the campaign will launch in the rest of the country in May 2024.

Gavi, UNICEF, the WHO and other "unnamed partners" are providing financial support so Nigeria's Federal Ministry of Health can offer the vaccines at no charge across the country.

Gavi is co-financing vaccine purchases and providing technical support. The WHO paid to train workers and set up vaccination sites. UNICEF is providing 15 million vaccines, infrastructure for cold storage and logistical support. It is also running radio and TV ads "in multiple local languages to dispel misinformation and rumours," the press release said.

The partners trained over 35,000 health workers to deliver the vaccines at 4,163 sites across the 16 states participating in phase one of the rollout "to ensure no eligible girl is left behind." Mobile vaccination units will be sent to remote communities.

"Gavi-supported vaccine introductions" for the HPV vaccine have been hindered by global supply shortages, the press release said, but those supply issues are being overcome "thanks to years of market-shaping efforts to develop a more robust vaccine market."

HPV Gardasil vaccine-producer Merck, which has invested heavily in shaping the market since the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved the drug in 2006, last week announced that its 2023 third-quarter Gardasil sales grew 13% to $2.6 billion.

Merck is one of Gavi's key partners in distributing vaccines in low- and middle-income countries worldwide.

The vaccine rollout in Nigeria comes on the heels of a similar Gavi-led — and UNICEF-, WHO- and Clinton Health Access Initiative-supported — national HPV campaign launched in Indonesia in August to add HPV vaccine to that country's routine schedule. The initiative aims to vaccinate 90% of girls there.

Bangladesh also launched a similar national HPV vaccine rollout in October, aiming for 100% coverage. Zambia launched the same initiative in September, vaccinating 1.42 million girls ages 9-14 in six days.

Sierra Leone introduced the vaccine into its routine vaccination program in October and Eritrea launched a nationwide vaccine program in November 2022.

These programs are part of a 2020 program initiated by the WHO's World Health Assembly to eradicate cervical cancer as a public health problem worldwide.

Gavi, Gates and the African HPV vaccine rollout

Gavi, the WHO and UNICEF are interconnected in a number of ways. Gavi is a public-private partnership launched in 1999 at a World Economic Forum meeting. By its own count, it has vaccinated 1 billion children since then, by employing "innovative finance and the latest technology."

Gavi has long been criticized for placing too much emphasis on novel vaccines developed by its pharmaceutical partners rather than ensuring that basic vaccination is carried out, for being largely "top-down" and for subsidizing Big Pharma through questionable contracts and incentives — all in the name of "saving children's lives," according to scholar Anne-Emanuelle Birn, Sc.D.

The Gates Foundation maintains a heavy hand in directing Gavi. Although as a "public-private partnership" its private donor list includes upwards of 50 individual corporations, most of them have donated only between $200,000 and a few million dollars to Gavi. The Gates Foundation has donated $4.1 billion to date.

In addition to the seats held by the Gates Foundation, the WHO, UNICEF and the Clinton Health Access Initiative, board members include representatives from donor countries — of which the U.S. is the largest donor — and countries targeted by Gavi's interventions.

Industry representatives include Andrew Otoo, who holds a doctorate in pharmacy, formerly of Pfizer and now representing Merck, and Sai Prasad of Bharat Biotech. A number of "independent individuals" drawn from global finance and government also sit on the board, along with one representative of civil society organizations.

Gavi has been distributing the HPV vaccine in Africa since 2011 when it financed Rwanda's program to be the first African nation to implement a national HPV vaccine program aimed at girls under age 15. Today it purports to have 90% coverage for girls in Rwanda.

Although Gavi's logo, not the Gates Foundation's, appears on the HPV promotional literature and press releases, researchers have argued that Gates' substantial funding for Gavi and the WHO, and the foundation's research grantmaking give it outsized power to drive global and local health priorities and spending.

The Gates Foundation in September awarded a nearly $2 million, five-month grant to the Sydani Group in Nigeria, which is providing technical assistance for Phase 1 of Nigeria's vaccine rollout.

The foundation also funded the HPV trials in low- and middle-income countries such as India and Kenya that justify mass vaccination and that are used to make dose recommendations, some of which have ended in scandal.

The campaign to eradicate cervical cancer is reminiscent of the Gates Foundation's previous campaign, also initiated by the WHO and supported by Gavi, UNICEF and others, to eradicate polio.

That campaign eventually faltered and also led to "a massive outbreak of vaccine-derived infections" that "engulfs much of Africa," the BMJ reported.

By the end of 2020, Gavi funded the introduction of the HPV vaccine in 13 African countries. Now, it is behind the new round of rollouts.

"I am deeply disturbed by continuing Big Pharma/GAVI/WHO attacks on African people, at the tip of blatantly unnecessary, dangerous and expensive injections," Shabnam Palesa Mohamed of Children's Health Defense Africa told The Defender. "It is critical that we strengthen our efforts to raise awareness in Africa about Big Pharma crimes and informed consent."

But, she added, there is a lot of resistance to this program by African people. "African countries fulfilled an important role in rejecting most dystopian amendments to the International Health Regulations at the WHO's World Health Assembly 75 last year."

"The Wuhan Cover-Up"
by Robert F. Kennedy Jr.

ORDER NOW

Experts 'profoundly concerned' about likely adverse events

According to Gavi, nearly 80-90% percent of the approximately 300,000 deaths per year from cervical cancer — the fourth most common cancer among women — occur in low- and middle-income countries and the majority occur in sub-Saharan Africa.

About 8,000 Nigerian women die per year from cervical cancer in Nigeria, Muhammad Ali Pate, the coordinating minister of Health & Social Welfare, said.

The higher rates are largely attributed to low screening coverage for cervical cancer and limited treatment options in the region, although actual numbers vary widely from country to country.

The HPV virus can lead to cervical cancer, but the vast majority of infections clear on their own.

There are more than 150 strains of HPV. High-risk HPV types can cause cervical cell abnormalities that are precursors to cancer, although HPV infection is not the sole risk factor for cervical cancer.

Regular pap screening has been found to reduce the incidence and mortality of cervical cancer among women by at least 80%.

But Gavi argues, "Cervical cancer is almost entirely vaccine-preventable, which means that alongside screening for early detection, rolling out the HPV vaccine is critical to preventing infections."

Public health officials like Dr. Diane Harper from the University of Michigan's Department of Family Medicine celebrate Gavi's strategy. Harper told The Defender, "Nigeria is making awesome strides in eliminating the risk of cervical cancer in its population by vaccinating its girls."

Lyons-Weiler disagreed:

"First, the studies never showed that HPV vaccines reduce the incidence of cervical cancer.

"Instead, they showed the HPV vaccines reduce the prevalence of cervical intraepithelial neoplasia, a precondition sometimes associated with cervical cancer, associated with HPV-vaccine targeted HPVs.

"The second important point, and this is directly related to the first, is that the biomedical research literature is filled with studies that show that HPV vaccination programs have actually caused the replacement of the previously most common types of HPVs with rarer types of HPVs that also cause cancer. This is known as HPV-type replacement.

"Rarer types of HPVs can be less common because they are more deadly. So this means that HPV vaccine programs should lead to an increase in cervical cancer rates even in fully vaccinated populations, involving more aggressive cancers at an earlier age."

Studying HPV vaccine efficacy for eliminating cervical cancer is challenging due to the length of time between infection and the development of cancer (mean time 23.5 years), lack of adequate informed consent, complexity between HPV infection and cervical cancer, and the negative impact of girls' sexual behavior, which may worsen the risks of cervical cancer.

'Merck cares more about profit than it does people'

The Gardasil vaccine has been linked to myriad adverse events. Some of the signature impacts observed following HPV vaccination include permanently disabling autoimmune and neurological conditions such as postural orthostatic tachycardia syndrome, or POTS, fibromyalgia and myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome.

There have been thousands of reports of adverse events worldwide. Peer-reviewed scientific literature from the U.S., Australia, Denmark, Sweden, France and Japan, and statistics published by public health agencies in each of these countries demonstrate plausible associations between HPV vaccination and autoimmune conditions.

Merck keeps a database of such reported adverse events but does not make that information public. A North Carolina district judge ordered Merck to turn over all of its Gardasil adverse events databases to plaintiffs suing the pharmaceutical giant for injuries allegedly caused by the vaccine.

The federal Vaccine Injury Compensation Program has paid out more than $70 million to people making claims regarding Gardasil for injuries. There are currently about 80 cases pending against Merck for vaccine injuries in federal court in the U.S.

Michael Baum, senior partner at Wisner Baum and the attorney representing vaccine-injured plaintiffs in several lawsuits against Merck, told The Defender that the data on HPV vaccine injuries in the U.S. raises serious concerns about Nigeria's mass vaccination program:

"U.S. data makes it clear that vaccinating millions of Nigerian girls with Gardasil will cause a staggering number of serious adverse events, including death. Before COVID, Gardasil had more adverse event reports in the U.S. than any other vaccine.

"We know it is dangerous, and on top of that, its efficacy in preventing cervical cancer has never truly been established. There is not a single study that shows Gardasil can prevent cervical cancer because Merck's studies were not designed to establish that claim. Nevertheless, Merck markets Gardasil around the world as a 'cervical cancer vaccine.'

"If the company were interested in backing up this claim, it would have conducted long-term studies by now. But it hasn't. I believe the sad truth is Merck cares more about profit than it does people."

Your support helps fund
this work, and CHD's related advocacy, education and scientific research.

DONATE NOW

According to an article in the British Journal of Clinical Pharmacology, most low- to middle-income countries have very low reporting rates for adverse events associated with vaccines or other pharmaceutical products, so it is difficult to know how many adverse events have been associated with the rollouts that have happened so far.

Lyons-Weiler told The Defender that resources now going into vaccination should instead go toward cervical cancer screening, which for most people is a curative diagnostic.

"Early detection is key, and delaying screening because one feels protected due to the misleading narrative over HPV vaccines protecting against cervical cancer will lead to increased cases of late-stage cancer, and deaths," he said.

Harper also supported screenings, but also strongly supported the vaccines. "It is not a question of investing only in vaccination or only in screening. Both are necessary. Compromises in the amount of finite money allocated to each will be necessary, but both are necessary."

Kim Mack Rosenberg, CHD acting general counsel and co-author of "The HPV Vaccine on Trial" told The Defender:

"Having studied the HPV vaccines in depth for several years, I am profoundly concerned about Nigeria's mass vaccination campaign. Instead of vaccinating millions of girls, steps should be taken to reduce risk factors that may contribute to cervical cancer, including early pregnancy and multiple pregnancies, poor nutrition and poor nutritional status, lack of access to clean cooking fuels, and others.

"Moreover, there have been so many innovations in cervical cancer screening that now enable doctors and others to more easily screen, even in rural areas."

Different dose recommendations for high vs. low/middle-income countries?

In the U.S., the current HPV vaccination schedule recommended by the CDC is two doses of Merck's Gardasil 9 vaccine for children ages 9-14 and three for those ages 15 and up. Gardasil 9, which protects against 9 HPV strains, is the only HPV vaccine distributed in the U.S.

Nigeria's vaccine advisory committee in 2021 recommended Gardasil's quadrivalent HPV vaccine for use in Nigeria, which protects against four strains.

When the vaccine first came on the market, the WHO recommended a three-dose course of any version of the vaccine — but in 2014, it changed its recommendation to two doses as part of routine vaccination.

Last year, the WHO announced that “a single-dose Human Papillomavirus (HPV) vaccine delivers solid protection against HPV,” and it changed its recommendations again to “a one or two dose schedule” for girls and women ages 9 and up, based on “evidence emerging over past years,” but without any citations.

But most of the press release celebrated the single-dose recommendation as “less costly, less resource intensive and easier to administer,” predicting that it would be a “game-changer,” adding that “a single-dose recommendation has the potential to take us faster to our goal of having 90 per cent of girls vaccinated by the age of 15 by 2030.”

Lyons-Weiler said the language around dosing was “absolutely misleading,” because the shift to “one or two doses” doesn’t actually make a shift from the recommended two-dose schedule, but might make it easier to get buy-in to the program by skeptics.

SUGGEST A CORRECTION

Brenda Baletti, Ph.D.

Brenda Baletti Ph.D. is a reporter for The Defender. She wrote and taught about capitalism and politics for 10 years in the writing program at Duke University. She holds a Ph.D. in human geography from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and a master's from the University of Texas at Austin.

Sign up for free news and updates from Children’s Health Defense. CHD focuses on legal strategies to defend the health of our children and obtain justice for those injured. We can't do it without your support

Republishing Guidelines

Children's Health Defense Comment Policy

We welcome relevant and respectful comments. Off-topic comments may be removed.

Got it

Please read our Comment Policy before commenting.

99 Comments

 Login ▼

G

Join the discussion...LOG IN WITHOR SIGN UP WITH DISQUS ?

1

ShareBest Newest OldestWG

9 days ago

After having a son who is still struggling from HPV vaccine side effects, more than 4 years after vaccination, this feels like we are watching a genocide knowingly.

34 0 Reply • Share ›mojogenius

➔ WG

9 days ago

My son suffered catastrophic side effects as well. A stroke due to underlying Aplastic Anemia and Immune Thrombocytopenia. His bone marrow shut down completely. He was a competitive swimmer one day and then the next- spending over a year in the hospital struggling through one health crisis after another.

20 0 Reply • Share ›WG

➔ mojogenius

8 days ago

I'm very sorry to hear that. Did you ever try high dosed vitamins and organic food to help him?

Our son is much better because of that. He only has occasional relapses, but less and less frequently. We now had almost 6 months with not so severe problems.

He was a top-ranked junior tennis player - and is now able to practice again - and looks much better.

4 0 Reply • Share ›Gordon Bricker

➔ WG

G

GORDON BRICKER → WG

7 days ago

It's horrific but there is hope for all Christians: our lord and Savior JESUS CHRIST is coming soon for the rapture, please accept HIM as your Lord and Savior today!!! listen to Dr. Ron Rhodes on end times chronology.. Blessings from Canada.

2 0 Reply • Share ›

C

Christine Jahnig → WG

9 days ago

We are. So sorry for your son's struggles.

11 0 Reply • Share ›

P

Polly Green → WG

9 days ago edited

I feel like every kind of vaccine is a mass casualty event. Who can say how many people would NOT be living with ASD or auto immune diseases or neuro-divergence or any number of rare conditions that have been "unmasked" by vaccination causing system derangement somewhere in the human body. Many kids will never function well enough to have relationships and be parents, so that's a form of population reduction. Every intervention carries risks and to make it the government's just to make sure the public gets sold a bill of "public health" goods has to stop. We're the wounded. When is the government going to stop forcing us to injure our children and ourselves?

9 0 Reply • Share ›

SHENZI → Polly Green

4 days ago

answer to your last question:

When the people stand up and say "NO . Not on my watch!"

3 0 Reply • Share ›

QuentonQuale → WG

8 days ago

There is no reason for any boy to be getting an HPV shot unless he suddenly developed a cervix. But in reality, no reason for any girl, either. All a fraud. No one has isolated any HPV, there's no proof that HPV is associated with cervical cancer. No proof that the shots have saved anyone's life. Just another toxic soup injected into the arms of children to boost the profits of another pharma company.

boost the profits of another pharma company.

6 0 Reply • Share ›

mojogenius

→ QuentonQuale

— 🚩

8 days ago

Remember the campaign for boys dealt with anal cancer as well and the idea that some throat cancers were caused by HPV and oral sex. About this time Michael Douglas disclosed he had throat cancer and did interviews talking about his diagnosis; he said it was linked to oral sex. No joke how this was a coincidence when they started to push the vaxx for boys after it was later approved. The literature and ads on TV told us it prevented all kinds of things, not just cervical cancer. Anyone remember this?

4 0 Reply • Share ›

SHENZI

→ mojogenius

— 🚩

4 days ago

So what are you saying here? That Michael Douglas was complicit or that they opportuned after he said that?

0 0 Reply • Share ›

WG

→ QuentonQuale

— 🚩

8 days ago

"There is no reason for any boy to be getting an HPV shot" Yes, I know now that this is true, but we fell for pretty convincing pharma ads on TV, that boys should do it to protect their future girl friends... NEVER AGAIN!

2 0 Reply • Share ›

SHENZI

→ WG

— 🚩

4 days ago

All the drug commercials (which have no business being on TV HELLOO) are the way they manipulate the people. Big pHARM virtually owns the mainstream media and people are being spoonfed the propaganda THEY want them to think. It's a whole racket. The same dark entity with many arms.

1 0 Reply • Share ›

Laura Zick-Mauzy

→ QuentonQuale

— 🚩

7 days ago

Hpv is also associated with anal, penile, oral, vulvar, and vaginal cancers. I believe the wording of this report is a bit misleading because the reason they say "no proof" is because there are currently no lab tests to show HPV status in the body. Technically, it would be better worded HPV-associated cancers because there is a direct correlation between specific HPV strains and these cancers. They send off tissue from the affected site and genotype it to confirm if HPV is present.

Yes, I have had an aggressive cancer caused by HPV. The treatments were horrendous and as a result, I have lifelong side-effects. I had to go on disability and leave my career. My quality of life has been greatly diminished, but I am alive.

Would I have taken the vaccine if it had been available back in the day? I don't know. But knowing what I know today and going through what I've been through, yes, definitely. And, I don't say that lightly. I've had ten years to think about this and what it's done to me.

But, I am alive!

0 0 Reply • Share ›

J

Jts

→ Laura Zick-Mauzy

— 🚩

3 days ago

Sorry for your struggles and appreciate your perspective on this conversation . I believe the guardasil was developed for good intentions, but it is a flawed product

0 0 Reply • Share ›

Molly Pitcher

→ WG

— 🚩

8 days ago

Nearly lost my 16-year-old granddaughter, she was left with lifelong Fibromyalgia and Rheumatoid Arthritis.

4 0 Reply • Share ›

WG

→ Molly Pitcher

— 🚩

8 days ago

Our son got much better with high dosed vitamins and organic food. He also got diagnosed with Rheumatoid Arthritis but it's completely gone!

I got diagnosed with Fibromyalgia many years ago, after 6 vaccines in 5 months

I got diagnosed with fibromyalgia many years ago, after 6 vaccines in 6 months, but I didn't recognize the causation back then. I'm 100% back to normal and in my opinion the vitamins and organic (vegan) food did heal me, that's why we are following the same strategy with our son.

3 0 Reply • Share ›

J

Jennifo

➔ WG

— 🚩

4 days ago

Gluten elimination can help tremendously since it's highly inflammatory & extremely toxic to every cell in the body, same with potatoes & rice for some. It can be a simple fix (or drastic help). Drs will never tell you food will help since they will get paid for offering you drugs.

Please check out an Autoimmune Protocol diet. If foods are being eaten that are causing your body to react (a severe histamine releasing effect), the body is on fire. Putting the fire to a mere smolder (out is ideal), may allow the quality of life to return to manageable.

2 0 Reply • Share ›

SHENZI

➔ WG

— 🚩

4 days ago

Anyone who is sick or has a sick child should seek the care of a naturopathic physician and yes .. do whatever it takes to support the body to heal itself through pure whole good food, spring water, supplements and herbs and the many holistic modalities that are available. The problem for most people is cost ~ because none of that is covered by insurance. God forbid the actual medicine would be covered by insurance.

This of course needs to change.

1 0 Reply • Share ›

S

shasta.o

➔ Molly Pitcher

— 🚩

8 days ago

So horribly sad.

0 0 Reply • Share ›

diana Mackin

➔ WG

— 🚩

8 days ago

I'm so sorry for your son's and others' children's vaccine damage from Gardasil. If it looks like a genocide, many folks are saying the depopulation plan starts in the southern hemisphere. And this looks like an early step. When the WHO quashes national sovereignty next Spring -- with our leaders' full approval -- we'll find more of the plan in action. Central (not sovereign state) call out of pandemics, and digital ID and deep monitoring/ surveillance to enforce compliance with whatever they decide is best for us. But by then it'll be too late. Signed is sealed.

3 0 Reply • Share ›

SHENZI

➔ diana Mackin

4 days ago

Not when RFK Jr is president!!

KENNEDY IS THE REMEDY!

he's pulling very well in this country needs to support him to get on the ballot please go to kennedy24.com and get what you can it's going to cost him $13-$15 million out of campaign donations from people in all the 50 states to get him on the ballot.

It's up to US, WE THE PEOPLE to do what's right . Do you have the power to elect a true leader with integrity who cares about US I will put a stop to the evil these hijacked agencies are committing.

Please go to kennedy24.com and support RFK Jr who will be the greatest president this country has ever seen.

0 0 Reply • Share ›

SHENZI

➔ WG

4 days ago

Yes. sorry about your son. Please seek out wise naturopathic care. Leave no stone unturned in finding him relief for his side effects. ✨🙏

0 0 Reply • Share ›

nick quinlan

9 days ago edited

Bill Gates is nothing but a degenerate vaccine terrorist and profiteer.

He belongs in an institution for the criminally insane.

I can't believe he is still alive given his extensive crimes against humanity, and children in particular.

He just may be the worst excuse for a human being that ever lived.

23 0 Reply • Share ›

A

Antoinette Genesis

➔ nick quinlan

— 🚩

9 days ago

Very well put! You took the exact words right out of my mouth. Had to ask: "Did I write this?" He is an evil & soul-less being given a lot of power only because he has money & the sociopathic world leaders will do anything to rub elbows with whoever or whatever has the most money.
Criminal Insanity...🔥

10 0 Reply • Share ›

Kris

➔ nick quinlan

— 🚩

9 days ago

He belongs dead.

6 0 Reply • Share ›

Peter van der Stam

➔ nick quinlan

— 🚩

9 days ago

Many years ago, Dr Mrs Baker, who worked at Merck as scientist apologized for her work as a developer of the jab.
She knew the ins and outs of the jab and also the side effect.
She wrote: the jab should NEVER have been authorized in the first place.
Too many harmed and dead girls.
But he !! Billy boy goes on with his aim to get rid of many girls or at least sterilize them.
His fathers Genocide ideas.
Billy shouldn't be incarcerated in an institution for the criminally insane.
A jail in India would do quite well
(and don't forget to throw the key in the ocean.)

5 0 Reply • Share ›

J

Jennifo

➔ Peter van der Stam

— 🚩

8 days ago

Tie him down & give him ALL the shots that he's crafted up!

2 0 Reply • Share ›

D

Deirdre I Hobson

➔ Peter van der Stam

— 🚩

4 days ago

and the usual "players" involved. listed in this Article.

0 0 Reply • Share ›

C

CastleConnell

➔ nick quinlan

—

9 days ago

Yes, but he is one of the most powerful people on the planet and holds tremendous sway over the health of us all, even if that influence is indirect.

4

0

Reply • Share ›

D

Deirdre I Hobson

➔ CastleConnell

—

4 days ago

another reason to stop The WHO that he contributes most of the budget, along with his monies to Gave, CEPI, UNicef and so many other like groups

1

0

Reply • Share ›

C

CastleConnell

➔ Deirdre I Hobson

—

4 days ago

The WHO/Gates amendments point to intent to rule the world. All countries under their jurisdiction will be little more than vassals. The brazen amendments are spelling it out.

0

0

Reply • Share ›

J

Jennifo

➔ CastleConnell

—

8 days ago

That must change!!

0

0

Reply • Share ›

C

CastleConnell

➔ Jennifo

—

8 days ago

How?

1

0

Reply • Share ›

J

Jennifo

➔ CastleConnell

—

8 days ago

Well, educate everyone you know how evil he is. Speak out, don't get anymore shots of (most?) anything, for one.

I don't have a God complex but every chance I get I'm telling friends & family what I learn about the lies. My family has not listened to me about the 5G, the insane amount of towers, cell phones, etc but I've planted the seed. That's all I can do.

People are slow to wake up. Sometimes even those closest to us.

2 0 Reply • Share ›

C

CastleConnell

→ Jennifo

— 🚩

8 days ago

I did the same for a while, but I didn't plant seeds, I just caused people to shut down and be labeled as a conspiracy theorist by family members who will only listen to legacy media and will never make the effort to search for the truth, they couldn't be bothered. They will only go along with legacy media, so when that changes they will change. And lawsuits are needed against the media lies, which killed.

1 0 Reply • Share ›

J

Jennifo

→ CastleConnell

— 🚩

8 days ago

Yeah I hear you. I had many of those too. They just can't connect the dots.

1 0 Reply • Share ›

C

CastleConnell

→ Jennifo

— 🚩

8 days ago

They don't want to. They would connect them if they had symptoms and their doctor said 'yep, this is a side effect of the shot you took', in fact, many with adverse reactions who were very pro the shot and mandates, did back pedal after learning the hard way. I was very naive in the beginning, thinking people would care, what an eye opener about human denial and spinelessness. I am still angry.

2 0 Reply • Share ›

J

Jennifo

→ CastleConnell

— 🚩

7 days ago

I am too. I watch a lot of health & wellness masterclass docuseries on pre/post covid & it is absolutely undeniably the scariest evidences & info I can humanly process. Jonathan Otto does such amazing interviews with specialists & top virologists (among others) that covid scratched the surface of the ultimate plan that's been in place for a very long time. Like the WHO is in charge of the DoD now under what's called the Bioshield Act of 2022. Executive Orders 13295 & 13887 in 2019 under Trump. We have no rights at this moment & we just don't know about it.

I just can't. I do not plan on getting into this convo explaining myself & what I've learned so don't ask. :) I'd rather nowt exhaust my day doing so.

0 0 Reply • Share ›

C

CastleConnell

→ Jennifo

— 🚩

7 days ago

I watch his masterclasses too, and many of the others. The one thing I do do, is inform some people of The Defender newsletter. I met a young mother from Columbia the other day, she had a baby and an autistic daughter. Her daughter had just been given shots for the flu and something else. I showed the mother The Defender on my phone and told her to do her research to protect her child. That is about the best contribution I can make. No arguing, just pass on a really good resource for an open person.

3 0 Reply • Share ›

J

Jennifo

→ CastleConnell

— 🚩

7 days ago

Agreed. Me too. That's all we can do.

1 0 Reply • Share ›

C

CastleConnell

→ Jennifo

— 🚩

7 days ago

yes

0 0 Reply • Share ›

D

Deirdre I Hobson

→ CastleConnell

— 🚩

4 days ago

Point out that mainstream media does NOT report on major happenings in the world, and ask themselves WHY NOT!

WHy people over 40 years ago rarely got ill with even the common cold,

yet now...give them

0 0 Reply • Share ›

C

CastleConnell

→ Deirdre I Hobson

— 🚩

4 days ago

At this point I think adults are responsible for searching for the truth themselves, and anything I say is viewed as unsolicited advice and interference and is counterproductive. When the media leaks out some of the facts which will happen, then they will start to change their minds, as they do go along with the media.

0 0 Reply • Share ›

D

Deirdre I Hobson

→ Jennifo

— 🚩

4 days ago edited

tell people that the human body is 70 - 75% water and that water communicates and responds to electro magnetic pulses.

Hence the 5G towers continued being built in a concerted effort right through Plandemic and Churches' closed down as were small businesses and Tell people to put the jigsaw puzzle together.

0 0 Reply • Share ›

S

shasta.o

→ nick quinlan

— 🚩

8 days ago

So.....why did his wife leave him? Won't she speak up? Perhaps she was paid off....

0 0 Reply • Share ›

J

Jennifo

→ shasta.o

— 🚩

6 days ago